Once upon a time, there was a SUPER SCHOOL named supercalifragilisticexpealidocious.
It was called "Super" because everyone was always doing everything, right.
Everyone at Super told the truth.
The students did their own work and never scribbled on their papers.
Everyone at Super was respectful.
The students always finished their work and they always worked hard to get better and better grades.

I did a great job today!
The students kept their own books, pencils, backpacks, and coats.
Everyone was nice to each other...

...and since the students told the truth, everyone believed what the students said.
The teachers could trust the students because the students never cheated on tests.
The students walked in the halls and never played in the water in the bathrooms.

The students would never yell in the school building.
Teachers would tell the students to do things and the students would say...
"Yes!!!!"
The students always wanted to come to school at super because they loved to learn.
Would you be able to learn anything at Super?
